COMPENSATION BILL READING

Rowell and Others Want Measure Hurried Up.

SOME CRITICISM

Bill Now Goes For Discussion in Committee.

Toronto, March 24.—Workmen's Compensation bill, the centre of the House in the Legislature yesterday. After seven years of waiting on the part of the working classes of the Province, the House has adopted the principle of an up-to-date measure, and the bill now goes into the committee stage to be considered in detail.

While the leaders of both parties in the House agreed that the bill was of much importance that best results could most probably be secured if an discussion was of a non-partisan character, Mr. Rowell openly avowed his desire that this should follow, as he considered the enactment of this legislation of paramount importance to the workers. But it resulted for Mr. Brewster to introduce the party element, and seek to discredit Mr. Rowell's attitude by declaring that the opposition leader had not always entertained the same opinion of Sir William Meredith that he had expressed during the afternoon.

Mr. Elliott quickly turned the tables on Mr. Brewster and showed that the position of the Liberal party was that they criticized the Government for delay in 1911 and would offer the same criticism now if not legislation had been forthcoming.

Mr. Rowell did not add much to the general explanation that he made when the bill was introduced and given a first reading. The second reading was preceded by the formal adoption of a resolution authorizing the appropriation of $100,000 of the consolidated revenue fund to the reserves fund required by the act. Mr. Rowell did not know if this would be sufficient. In fact it was quite possible that it would be more.

DATE OF ENFORCEMENT.

In moving the second reading of the workmen's compensation bill, Hon. Mr. Lucas said he had made all the observations of a general character before, but there was one point of criticism he desired to remove.
This was that there was no date fixed for the bringing of the bill into force.
He remarked that it was hoped the bill might be brought into operation during the present year, though, of course, the Government would naturally act upon the reports of the Commissioners. However, to end any discussion and to fix a date when it would definitely come into force he proposed in committee to introduce an amendment which would declare that in any event it would come into operation not later than Jan. 1 next, or at an earlier date, which the Government might by proclamation declare. He thought that for many reasons it should be brought into operation by Nov. 1.

Mr. Rowell, comparing the bill with presented other than a high opinion of Sir William Meredith. The leader of the Opposition had criticized his as opponent to the Commission on the ground that both capital and labor would have been represented on it.

When the Liberals offered the British act to the people of Ontario that was the "most recent legislation of the kind available." In 1911 the Liberals were dissatisfied that no compensation bill had been brought in by the Government, and would have been more dissatisfied to-day if the same condition existed.

SHOULD PAY QUICKLY.

"When compensation is to be paid it should be paid quickly," said Mr.
H. C. Schellford (South Weston). "The workers do not have when an accident happens." It was most essential for the House of the act that the governing board should act continuously so that needy cases could be quickly looked after.

Mr. W. D. McPherson (West Toronto) thought no Legislature had ever approached a question of so much importance where the preparatory work had not clarified the air.
There was also the interesting question of the Opposition and the Government agreeing on the main principles of the measure. The great benefit to the workmen he pointed out by contrasting the amounts they received paid by the manufacturers to casualty companies, less than twenty-five per cent, of which the injured workman or his dependents, while under the proposed act the entire contribution to the manufacturers would go to compensate the workman.

Mr. George Pattinson (South Weston) in supporting the measure said it was workmen's compensation disfranchisement from employers liability.

WHERE BILL FALLS DOWN.

After supper Mr. Proudfoot, strikingly emphasized the point made by Mr. Rowell in the afternoon regarding the benefits for partial disability under the Meredith draft act and the present bill. Under the Meredith draft act a man with a salary of $50, and who was obtaining 310 while partially disabled, could obtain as a result of the difference, the other $10, whereas, under the present bill, he would only get 10 per cent of the difference, making $50 in the former case and $15.00 in the latter. Referring to railway employees, Mr. Proudfoot said that the bill was drawn up so that it did not affect them, Mr. Proud-foot said that he might not have been so sure of this, but at present it was not quite clear to him. This, however, was a bill, it covered all that they expected, that would be of the greatest benefit to working people and the manufacturers as well.

MR. A. E. DONOVAN (Brockville) followed and spoke in glowing terms of the

HELP THE DOCTORS?

Dr. James A. McQueen (West Weston) supported the measure that would place the workmen of the Province upon an industrial basis and not be dependent upon charity after accidents or infectious diseases. The amount of the compensation proposed, while it might be sufficient for ordinary cases, would hardly be satisfactory where extraordinary conditions obtained, where sickness and disease overtook a family. "In my opinion the bill would not be sufficient to do anything for medical fees," (hear, hear, and laughter). These expenses were not covered by the bill. A small provision was made, the amount of the compensation might be reduced.
Mr. Rowell argued the Government to lose no time in bringing the act into force, as the situation was so hardship to many families, as was demonstrated after the Great Lakes disasters at the end of November.

Mr. Allan Studholme (East Hamilton) offered Labor's contribution to the debate. He regretted that Mr.
Brewster had taken occasion to introduce the apple of political discord into the discussion. He advised the Opposition to revise its campaign handbook. While the workers of the Province wanted and needed the bill, the wife of a workman wanted most his husband, and not the bill and compensation it provided.

The bill finally passed without division.

Three bills by Mr. Heast to provide fire bells around forest towns, amendment to the mines act and to provide for the export of pulpwood during the present year, were given a second reading.

NEW YEAR'S VOTING.

Mr. George S. Henry (East York) introduced a bill to amend the municipal act, making it optional with municipalities to hold elections on New Year's Day. The bill also provides that municipalities of over $500, and that all Councils, and all Councils in Township and Village Councils shall be designated by number.

To enable municipalities to borrow money for works for which debentures are to be issued before the debentures are raised is the object of a bill brought in by Mr. R. H. McElroy (Carlton).

HOT CRITICISM OF ROYAL STAND

Is Parliament or King to Rule in Britain?

LABOR'S QUESTION

Some Plain Words in the British House.

London, March 24.—Westminster continues to be a seething cauldron over what the Liberals now denounce as the "mutiny of the army aristocrats" against democratic government.

The fact has been established from all obtainable evidence that General Gough and the other officers of the Third Cavalry brigade demanded and obtained written assurances which had been drafted by a lawyer, that they would not be ordered to fight Sir Edward Carson's Ulster volunteers, and that these assurances were obtained largely through the personal intervention of the King.

Before they left London yesterday they sent telegraphic messages to their brother officers in Ireland that they had found support "from the highest quarters." On arrival at Curragh camp to-day they were welcomed by a guard of honor with cheers, and received the outcome of their summons to the War Office.

Addressing the officers, General Gough said he had a guarantee that they would not be employed to force Home Rule on the Ulstermen, but added that if they were ordered there for the protection of life and property and the preservation of order it was their duty to obey, and they would take it.

General Gough confirmed the statement that he had been given a written guarantee.

HOW THE LAND LIES.

The House of Commons witnessed a telling demonstration this afternoon of how the land lies. It showed where not only the Irish Home Rulers and Laborites, who made Premier Asquith's majority and hold the balance of power in the House, stand, but that many Liberals are opposed to what, from their present information, they considered a surrender to the army officers.
The army appropriation bill was under discussion, and the Unionist Leopold C. Emery moved a resolution for the purpose of criticizing the Government on the ground that it was not entitled to use the army for party purposes, which is the basis of the Unionist position in the present crisis.

The Laborite John Ward, who was a dock laborer at one time and a private in the army, seconded the motion, but from a different point of view. He said that the Conservatives, by approving the rebellion of the officers, had "started to smash the British army." The House, he said, had to decide whether it was going to maintain the discipline of the army as a central force, or whether the Parliament elected by the people should, "absolutely without interference from the King or the army, make the laws of the realm."

HALF THE HOUSE ON ITS FEET.

When the speaker uttered, in stun-torious tones, "without interference from the King or the army," giving a calculated and dramatic pause after the word "King," half the House was on its feet cheering. All the Labor members and all the Home Rule Irishmen, and not only they, but very many of the Liberal members, stood and shouted for a considerable space of time.

Parliament had not witnessed such an obviously hostile criticism of the throne in the memory of the oldest members not even in the past century.

James Henry Thomas, Labor member for Derby, and Organizing Secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, speaking in the House afterwards, said that the motion given by 400,000 railway men would expire in November. If the doctrine announced by the Opposition were allowed to prevail, it might be his duty in November to demand the installation of a permanent committee of civil and military officers in order to enforce their demands.

Would the Opposition members, he asked, content to sit quietly in their seats and permit him to preach such doctrines?

JEAN VALJEAN

Dr. S. Cleaver, on Hugo's Greatest Creation.

At Zion Tabernacle last evening a large number had the pleasure of hearing Rev. Dr. Cleaver, of Central Methodist Church, Toronto, in a clear, gripping manner and with great oratorical power, this gentleman told the story of the life of Jean Valjean, the most prominent character in Victor Hugo's novel, "Les Misérables."

He told of the early struggles for existence, and of how, driven to desperation at the end of hunger, he stole a loaf of bread, only to be arrested and sent to jail. His nineteen long years at the galleys of Toulon were dealt with, then his release.

Then he met the bishop of D— who, tendered to him his hospitality, and directed his thoughts towards God and all that was good. From that time, although he stole the bishop's silver, his life started upward, and he developed one of the most Christ-like characters in literature.

For years he endured with great fortitude injustices and persecutions, finally dying at a ripe old age, with good will to all men. One of the most striking incidents of his career after leaving prison was the rescue of a young man, who was about to be hanged.

After her death he adopted her daughter, Cosette, as his own child. His life was a life of love, but he was distributed indiscriminately in charity, and he left a large mass of property to Cosette.

Much appreciation was expressed at the excellent lecture and Dr. Cleaver received a hearty vote of thanks.

The Near Future.

One hundred members of the Hamilton Ad Club gathered at the Tudor Inn last evening to listen to the first of the series of lectures on the subject of the Ad Club, which in connection with a luncheon, and in introducing the speaker, Mr. R. T. Kelley, who presided, being made to add strength to the Ad Club, which of recent months had been heard from but little.

The speaker, John F. Wildman, general manager of the Office Specialty Company, Toronto, told for his subject, the origin of modern business systems. Mr. Wildman explained the various views, the methods adopted by ancient Egyptians, the methods of the Greeks, and the methods of the Romans. The speaker, John F. YELLOWSTONE PARK
E. H. Collins Illustrated
Lecture In St. Giles.

"Yellowstone National Park" was the subject of a most interesting, illustrated lecture delivered in St. Giles' Presbyterian Church last evening by Mr. E. H. Collins, B.A., of the College Institute, Mr. Collins, who has made a visit recently to this great national park of the United States, took several very fine pictures and these proved to be very interesting.

The speaker referred to the great quantity of game that thronged this area of the most interesting features proved to be the geysers. Some very clear pictures of these geysers were shown, and the speaker was present, and Rev. J. B. Paulin presided.

CHARLTON SCHOOL
Officers and Teachers Dine and Discuss Matters.

The officers and teachers of Charlton Avenue Methodist Sunday School met around the tea table last evening in the church parlour, and discussed a magnificent report, discussed Sunday school matters for a couple of hours. Reports from some of the organized classes were given and the report was a most interesting one.

It was decided, if possible, to have a picnic for the children of the department to accommodate the ever-increasing number of attendants. A picnic was recently decided upon, and the school, showed that many members of the department were very successful in their efforts to raise money for the school's expenses.

A large number of attendants at Sunday school is increasing each week and the department is in a flourishing condition.

that he had arrived I asked the attendant to tell him that I had known somewhat wished to speak to him.

"The editor sent a reply that he would be unable to receive me unless he knew my name. He said that he had brought in a form for me to have my name. I refused to do so, as I did not want the attendant to know my identity, and so I inserted my card in his envelope. It was then 4:10 o'clock."

"I. Calmette did not keep me waiting. I heard him say: 'Let me, Calmette meet.' The words gave me a shock. I arose. 'What?' I said. 'Calmette.' He said: 'I am Calmette. I was deeply excited and full of emotion, but nevertheless I was able to reply: 'Good evening, Monsieur. You are doubtless aware of the object of my visit?'

"Yes, at all," he replied; "please sit down, pointing to a chair."

"At this moment I lost my head entirely. My husband's throat, my long hair, this half light, this man who had so deeply injured my husband, and me who intended to continue his work, this deadly enemy of my husband's was there before me."

"Quickly I pulled out the revolver and fired, aiming low. Was I even aware I was shooting? No, I was drawn on by the calmness of the weapon, by the suppleness of the trigger and automatically I fired and fired, always aiming low."
